THE ART OF PLATESCAPING

Platescaping is an easy way to make your desserts appear more appealing. Below are some platescaping examples along with instructions. Get creative in the kitchen and come up with your own designs and techniques!

This design begins with a liberal circle of raspberry or strawberry syrup. It is then dotted with white syrup as shown. The white syrup is transformed into heart shapes by dragging a toothpick through the centers of each dot.

Create this design using squeeze sauce colors and flavors of your choice. Here, a white syrup is looped generously around the edge of the plate, then each loop is filled in with a strawberry syrup and centered with butterscotch.

Less is often more. The simplicity of this plate design begins with just three graduated sizes of red syrup dots. A spoon is then used to drag the center of each dot in staggered lengths for an elegant plate.

Use three layers of varying flavors to create a starburst effect. With three concentric layers of syrups in the center of the plate, use a toothpick to pull syrup from center outward to create as many starburst streaks as you like.

Atop a large portion of syrup in the center of the plate, create spirals of two different syrup flavors. Alternate pulling outward from center to the edge, then back inward toward center to weave a spider web type effect.
